It is expected that these commands will average about forty neut. In while event the number of military in line will be about twelve hundred.

In this connection it may be stated that Acting Governor Willard, ex officio acting commander-in-chief, assembles the military on this occasion, but as soon as they have been assembled, he will turn over the command to the chief marshal. Colonel Charles T. Owerrall, ex-Governor Virginia, who will have command of the men thereafter until dismissed.

The route of the procession, which is fully outlined in the official order of Chief Marshal O'Ferrall elsewhere, will be appropriately draped along the business streets traversed, and some of the residences along the route will also drape, it is expected.

EXPRESSED WISH OF GEN. FITZ. LEE

Told Mrs. Lee That He Would be Buried in Hollywood.

"I hope whim my end comes, I may be buried in Hoilywood, overlooking James River, where the never ending sound of the water will be my lullady."

These were the words spoken by General Fitzhaigh Lee to Mrs. Lee shortly before his dearth, and remembering them, Mrs. Lee never cast the last resting place of her distinguished husband.

The lot that has been selected is just such a spot, is General Lee described. It is on the fill side overlooking the river, and the voice of everlasting waters will sing a fort sis, never-ending requiem mass of the two of the departed hero. GRACEFUL TRIBUTE.

Pennsylvania Commandery's Resolutions of Sorrow for Gen. Lee.

No more graceful tribute to the memory of General Fitzhugh Lee has been recorded than that of Pennsylvania Commandery, the naval and military of the Spanish-American war. This commandery, in session at Harrisburg, the night of April 29th, adopted the following resolutions, which were forwarded to Mrs. John B. Lightfoot, of this city, by the recorder of the commandery, Lieutenant Joseph Allison Steinmetz:

"Whereas, there lies dead in Virginia to-night one of her valiant sons, who was stricken in the line of duty; and

"Whereas, the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, in annual meeting assembled in the city of Harrisburg, voices the sentiment of the people of Pennsylvania in mourning with the people of her sister Commonwealth, Virginia, in the loss she has sustained in the untimely death of her splendid son and typical American soldler, General Fitzhugh Lee; it is therefore Upon Lee's Face Again.

The body of General Fitzhugh Lee lay in state all of yesterday on a catafalque in the rotunda of the City Hall, guarded by a detail from the local military organizations and surrounded on all sides by a profusion, of beautiful flowers. Thousands of persons filed in at the Broad Street entrance to the building and out at the Tenth Street entrance all day long, each person pausing to take a last look at the dead. A police officer was on duty at the outer door. He stated to a representative of The Times-Dispatch yesterday that the stream had been a constant one all day. The visitors included male and female, white and colored, and represented every walk in life.

Coming to Lee's Funeral.

The Southern Railway and the Chesapeake and Ohlo Railway beth announced yesterday affarnoon late that they would transport without charge troops from any point in Virginia on their lines to Richmond on account of the funeral of General Pitzhugit Lee to-night and to-morrow. This example of consideration and generosity on the part of these two lines will undoubtedly he followed by similar action on the part of other lines entering Richmond. Inquiry at the passenger officers of the other railways yesterday elicited the information that while the details had not been settled with the general traffic officials, it was practically certain that all the other roads will do the same as the Southern and Chesapeake and Ohlo. The matter has been take up at the general offices of sixth carriage, Cakwood Memorial Asso-ciation; seventh carriage, Richmond Chap-ter, Daughters of the Confederacy; eighth carriage, Daughters of the Confederacy; ninth carriage, Le cCamp Auxillary. Uniforms They Wear. Onterns They Wear.

Orders for the assembling of the military to attend the funeral of General Fitzhugh Lee have been issued from the commanding officers. All of the companies of infantry troops have been ordered to wear the service uniform of blue blouses and trousers (without leggings) and forage caps. Similar orders have been telegraphed to the out-of-town commands. The Staunton company, K. of the Seventieth which arrived last night, wore their khak uniforms, but they were entrained before the orders were issued.

Orders to the Howitzers had not been
